RISK DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

Introduction

The objective of this document is to provide information concerning the types of trading and investments which can involve special risks in order for you to make an informed assessment of the risks and uncertainties associated with investing or trading in securities, derivatives and structured products before you undertake such transactions through your broker. The associated risk of loss in entering into such transactions can be substantial.

This document cannot be and is not sufficient to explain all the risks and other significant aspects of entering into the various types of transactions discussed in this document. You should therefore fully understand the nature of the transactions and contractual relationships, the extent of your exposure to risk and the potential losses that can be incurred and, as appropriate, consult your financial and tax advisers or other professional advisers before entering into such transactions. In particular, derivatives transactions and structured products are not suitable for many members of the public. You should carefully consider whether such transactions are suitable for you in light of your financial resources, experience, objectives for engaging in the transactions, ability to bear risks and other relevant circumstances.

Section A of this document sets out some general investment risks relating to most transactions generally. Section B explains the risks surrounding certain investments and derivatives. Section C discusses non-traditional investments (such as hedge funds) and investments in the emerging markets.

Please read through this document carefully and consult your broker if you have any questions.

Section A - General Investment Risks

There are various risks of a general nature associated with investing and transacting in securities, derivatives and structured products. These include but are not limited to the following.

Potential losses

You may sustain substantial losses on the transactions if market conditions move against your positions. It is in your interest to understand fully the impact of market movements, in particular the extent of profit or loss you would be exposed to when there is an upward or downward movement in the relevant rates. Your position on various transactions may be liquidated at a loss and you will then be liable for any resulting deficit in your account with your broker. Under certain circumstances, it may be difficult to liquidate an existing position, assess the value, determine a fair price or assess your exposure to risk.

Risk of securities trading

The prices of securities can and do fluctuate, sometimes dramatically, and may become valueless. It is as likely that losses will be incurred rather than profit made as a result of buying and selling securities. In addition, securities regulations and investor protection rules vary with different exchanges. Some may expose investors in securities listed on those exchanges to high investment risk. In particular, certain exchanges allow companies to list with neither a track record of profitability nor any obligation to forecast future profitability. Such securities may be very volatile and illiquid and their greater risk profiles mean that trading on such exchanges or in such securities may be more suited to professional or sophisticated investors. You should seek independent professional advice if you are uncertain of or have not understood any aspect of the nature of the exchange or the risks involved in trading such securities.

In the case of shares of smaller companies (sometimes known as "penny shares"), there may be a greater risk of loss because there may proportionately be a large difference between the buying price and the selling price of these shares. If they have to be sold immediately, you may get back much less than the amount that you paid for them.

Liquidation of positions

Under certain market conditions you may find it difficult or impossible to liquidate a position. This may arise from the rules in certain markets (for example, the rules of a particular exchange may provide for "circuit breakers" where trading is suspended or restricted at times of rapid price movements).

Placing contingent orders, such as "stop-loss" or "stop-limit" orders, will not necessarily limit your losses to the intended amounts, as it may be difficult or impossible to execute such orders without incurring substantial losses under certain market conditions. Strategies using combinations of positions, such as "spread" or "straddle" positions may be as risky as taking simple "long" or "short" positions.

Risk of margin trading and trading in leveraged foreign exchange contracts

The risk of loss in leveraged trading or financing a transaction by deposit of collateral is significant. The high degree of leverage that is often obtainable in margin trading can work against you as well as for you due to fluctuating market conditions. You may sustain large losses as well as gains in response to a small market movement. While the amount of the initial margin required to enter into a transaction may be small relative to the value of the transaction, a relatively small market movement would have a proportionately larger impact. You may sustain losses in excess of your cash and any other assets deposited as collateral with your broker. You may be called upon at short notice to make additional margin deposits or interest payments. You should be aware that you may not be entitled to an extension of time when a margin call is made. If the required margin deposits or interest payments are not made within the prescribed time, your collateral may be liquidated without your consent. Moreover you will remain liable for any resulting deficit in your account and interest charged on your account. You should be aware that your broker may liquidate your collateral without contacting you. Further, your broker may be entitled to decide which collateral to liquidate in order to best protect its interests. You should therefore carefully consider whether such trading or financing arrangement is suitable in light of your financial position and investment objectives.

Securities borrowing

When you borrow securities, you should be aware that failure to return the borrowed securities to your broker on your broker's demand could lead to your broker effecting a buy in without further consultation with you, and you may then be liable for the total costs and expenses incurred by your broker arising from such buy in.

Pricing relationships

The normal pricing relationships between a derivative and its underlying assets may not exist in certain circumstances. The absence of an underlying reference price may make it difficult to assess the "fair" value of a derivative position. Under certain circumstances, the specifications of outstanding contracts (including the exercise price of an option or a warrant) may be modified by an exchange or clearing house to reflect changes in the underlying asset.

Tax risks

Before entering into any transaction you should understand the tax implications of doing so, e.g. income tax. Different transactions may have different tax implications. The tax implications are dependent upon the nature of your business activities and the transactions in question. You should therefore consult your tax adviser to understand the relevant tax considerations.

Currency risks

The profit and loss in transactions in foreign currency-denominated contracts (whether they are traded in your own or another jurisdiction) will be affected by fluctuations in currency rates and the difference between the buying price and the selling price of a currency where there is a need to convert from the currency denomination of the contract to another currency.

Counterparty risks

All transactions that are executed upon your instructions with counterparties and brokers are dependent on their due performance of their obligations. The insolvency or default of such counterparties and brokers may lead to positions being liquidated or closed out without your consent.

Commission and other charges

Your net returns from a transaction would also be affected by the transaction costs (i.e. commission, fees and other charges) charged by your broker, the clearing house and the securities exchange. These costs must be considered in any risk assessment made by you.

Custodial services

You acknowledge that there may be risks in leaving securities and assets in your broker's safekeeping. Such risks could involve the loss of all your securities and assets, leading to diminished investor protection. You should be prepared to assume these risks if you decide to leave your securities and assets in your broker's safekeeping. You should also understand that in relation to securities and assets held in other jurisdictions, your broker may appoint foreign custodians to safekeep your foreign securities and assets. In this respect, there may be additional risks in relation to such foreign custodians arising from the operation of foreign law, rules and regulations. You should therefore be prepared to assume these further risks before you engage your broker to provide such foreign custodial services. You should also be aware that you may incur additional costs for utilising custodial services.

While every attempt will be made to segregate your securities and your broker's securities held with custodians, there may be instances when some custodians may not recognise such segregation. Consequently, your ability to withdraw these securities may be affected if your broker defaults.

Transactions in foreign jurisdictions

Transactions on markets in other jurisdictions, including markets formally linked to a domestic market, may involve additional risk. In particular, securities that are foreign listed securities and are held outside Singapore are subject to the applicable laws and regulations of the relevant overseas jurisdiction that may be different from the Securities and Futures Act (Cap. 289) and the rules made thereunder in Singapore. Consequently, such securities may not enjoy the same protection as that conferred on securities received or held in Singapore. Before you trade you should enquire about any rules relevant to your particular transactions. The Monetary Authority of Singapore will be unable to compel the enforcement of the rules of foreign regulatory authorities or markets in other jurisdictions where the transactions have been effected. You should understand the types of redress available in both your home jurisdiction and other relevant jurisdictions before you start to trade. There may be restrictions for foreigners, repatriation of capital investments and profits and there may be withholding or additional forms of taxes.

Trading facilities and electronic trading

Most trading facilities are supported by computer-based component systems for the order-routing, execution, matching, registration or clearing of trades. As with all facilities and systems, they are vulnerable to temporary disruption or failure. Your ability to recover certain losses may be subject to limits on liability imposed by the system provider, the market, the clearing house and/or member firms. Such limits may vary. Before you conduct any transactions through such facilities or systems, you should understand the details in this respect. Further, trading on an electronic trading system may differ not only from trading in an open-outcry market but also from trading on other electronic trading systems. If you undertake transactions on an electronic trading system, you will be exposed to risks associated with the system including the failure of hardware and software. The result of any system failure may be that your order is either not executed according to your instructions or not executed at all.

Off-exchange transactions

In some jurisdictions and only in restricted circumstances, firms are permitted to effect off-exchange transactions. In addition to the issues concerning the liquidation of positions and pricing relationships generally set out above, off-exchange transactions may be less regulated or subject to a separate regulatory regime. Because prices and characteristics of over-the-counter financial instruments are often individually negotiated, there may be no central source for obtaining prices and there can be inefficiencies in the pricing of such instruments. Off-exchange transactions may also involve greater risk than dealing in exchange traded products because there is no exchange market through which to liquidate your position, to assess the value of the product or the exposure to risk. Bid and offer prices need not be quoted, and even where they are, they will be established by dealers in these products and consequently, it may be difficult to establish what a fair price is. Before you undertake such transactions, you should familiarise yourself with applicable rules and attendant risks.

Terms and conditions

It is important that you fully understand the terms and conditions of any transactions that you propose to undertake, including the contractual specifications of any exchange-traded option or contract, the circumstances under which you may become obliged to make or take delivery of an underlying asset upon settlement of a derivatives transaction, and the commissions, fees and other charges for which you will be liable. You should therefore familiarise yourself with any agreement or confirmation that you may enter into with your broker. You must fully understand your rights and obligations under that agreement or confirmation, and carefully study the trading mechanism and understand the potential risks involved before you trade. You should not sign any agreement or confirmation unless you are familiar with the contents or effects or your professional advisers have explained the contents and effects. In particular, you should be aware that your contract with your broker may not include the provision by your broker of financial advisory or fund management services. In these cases, you should seek independent advice as to whether any recommendation by your broker is suitable for you in view of your specific investment objectives, financial situation and particular needs.

Section B - Transactions involving special risks

Unit Trusts

Before investing in any unit trust, you are advised to read and understand the contents of the prospectus or any information memorandum. The prospectus or information memorandum may, but need not always contain, a statement of the risks specific to a particular unit trust. You should carefully assess the nature, characteristics and mandate of a unit trust and, amongst other things, consider the fees and charges involved. You should be aware that an investment in unit trusts is subject to various risks such as those highlighted in Section A of this document and there can be no assurance that a unit trust's investment objectives will be realised. In particular, the price of units in a unit trust is subject to both upwards and downwards movements. In this respect, the past performance of a unit trust should not be taken as an indication of its future performance. You should also understand that the issue, subscription and redemption price of units in respect of any unit trust is usually only indicative and not final and binding.

Options

What are options?

An option is a right granted by a person (the seller or writer) to another (the buyer or holder) to buy (call option) or to sell (put option) a specified amount of an underlying share or other asset at a predefined price (strike price) at or until a certain time (expiration date). The price you pay for this right is called the "premium". American-style options are exercisable on any trading day up until the expiration date. European-style options may only be exercised on their expiration date. This does not however limit their tradability on the secondary market.

The following can underlie an option:

- Assets such as equities, bonds, commodities and precious metals
- Benchmarks such as currencies, interest rates and indices
- Derivatives or
- Any combination of the above.

During the life of an option, the writer must often provide margin. The margin is determined by the counterparty or, in the case of exchange traded options, the exchange may determine the required margin. If the deposited margin proves insufficient, the writer may have to provide additional collateral or be faced with his position being closed-out. Certain exchanges in some jurisdictions permit deferred payment of the option premium, limiting the liability of the buyer to margin payments not exceeding the amount of the premium. The buyer is still subject to the risk of losing the premium and transaction costs. When the option is exercised or expires, the buyer is responsible for any unpaid premium outstanding at that time.

A call option is in-the-money if the current market value of the underlying is higher than the strike price. A put option is in-the-money if the current market value of the underlying is lower than the strike price. An option which is in-the-money is said to have an intrinsic value. A call option is out-of-the-money if the current market value of the underlying is lower than the strike price. A put option is out-of-the-money if the current market value of the underlying is higher than the strike price, meaning it has no intrinsic value. If the current market value of the underlying is equal to its strike price, the option is at-the-money.

The price of an option depends on its intrinsic value and on its time value. The latter depends on a variety of factors, including the remaining life of the option and the volatility of the underlying asset. The time value of an option reflects the chance that it will be in-the-money. Generally, the value of a call option decreases, and the value of a put option increases, as the value of the underlying asset falls. The less an option is in-the-money, the larger the decrease in value. This decrease also generally accelerates as the life of the option expires, and is proportionally larger than the decrease in value of the underlying asset. However, in certain cases, the value of an option may decrease even if the value of the underlying asset remains unchanged or moves in favour of the buyer.

Risks of options trading

Transactions in options carry a higher degree of risk. Buyers and sellers of options should familiarise themselves with the type of options (i.e. put or call) which they contemplate trading and the associated risks. You should calculate the extent to which the value of the options would have to increase for your position to become profitable, taking into account the premium paid and all transaction costs. You should also inform yourself of the exercise and expiration procedures and your rights and obligations upon exercise or expiry.

The buyer of options may offset its position by trading in the market or exercise the options or allow the options to expire. A person who purchases an option should be aware that in order to realise any value from the option, it will be necessary either to offset the option position or to exercise the option. The buyer of an option should be aware that some option contracts may provide only a limited period of time for exercise of the option (e.g. an American-style option), and some option contracts may provide for the exercise of the option on a specified or stipulated date (e.g. a European-style option). The exercise of an option results either in a cash settlement or in the buyer acquiring or delivering the underlying interest. If the option is on a futures contract or leveraged foreign exchange transaction, the buyer will have to acquire a futures or leveraged foreign exchange position, as the case may be, with associated liabilities for margin. If the purchased options expire worthless, you will suffer a total loss of your investment which will consist of the option premium paid plus transaction costs. If you are contemplating buying deep-out-of-the-money options, you should be aware that, ordinarily, the chance of such options becoming profitable is remote. It may sometimes even be impossible to acquire the necessary underlying asset.

Selling (writing or granting) an option generally entails considerably greater risk than buying options. Although the premium received by the seller is fixed, the seller may sustain a loss well in excess of the amount of the premium received. The seller will be liable to deposit additional margin to maintain the position if the market moves unfavourably. The seller will also be exposed to the risk of the buyer exercising the option and the seller will be obligated to either settle the option in cash or to acquire or deliver the underlying interest. If the option is on a futures contract or a leveraged foreign exchange transaction, the seller of a put option will acquire a futures contract or leveraged foreign exchange position, as the case may be, with associated liabilities for margin. If the option is "covered" by the seller holding a corresponding position in the underlying futures contract, leveraged foreign exchange transaction or another option, the risk may be reduced. If the option is not covered, the risk of loss can be unlimited.

Additional risks common to options trading

Terms and conditions of contracts: Before you conduct your transactions, you should understand the terms and conditions of the specific option which you are trading and the associated obligations (e.g. the expiration dates and restrictions on the time of exercise). Under certain circumstances, the specifications of outstanding contracts (including the exercise price of an option) may be modified by the exchange or clearing house to reflect changes in the underlying interest.

Commodity options: Before entering into any transaction involving a commodity option, you should thoroughly understand the nature and type of option involved and the underlying physical commodity. In addition to the risks set out above and in Section A, you should note that specific market movements of the underlying physical commodity cannot be predicted accurately. The prices of commodities can and do fluctuate, and may experience up and down movements which would affect the value of the option.

Exotic options: Unlike "plain vanilla" put and call options, exotic options are subject to additional conditions and agreements. Exotic options come in the form of tailor-made over-the-counter options or as warrants (see section on warrants below). Given the special composition of exotic options, their price movements can vary markedly from those of their "plain vanilla" cousins. You must also be aware that larger transactions can trigger price movements even shortly before expiration and that these can render an option worthless. There is no limit to the structures exotic options may take. We cannot go into detail here about the risks involved in any particular case. Before buying any exotic options, be sure to seek comprehensive advice about the particular risks involved.

Warrants

What are warrants?

A warrant is a right to subscribe for shares, debentures or other securities, and is exercisable against the original issuer of the securities. As in the case of options, warrants often involve a high degree of gearing, so that a relatively small movement in the price of the underlying security results in a disproportionately large movement in the price of the warrant. The prices of warrants can therefore be very volatile and may fall in value as rapidly as it may rise due to, including but not limited to, variations in the frequency and magnitude of the changes in the price of the underlying security, the time remaining to expiry and the creditworthiness of the issuer.

A "covered warrant" refers to a right to acquire shares or other securities which is exercisable against someone other than the original issuer of the securities.

Risks of trading in warrants

As in the case of options, the buyer of a warrant is subject to the risk of losing the premium and transaction costs. Investments in warrants involve substantial risks including market risk, liquidity risk and the risk that the issuer will be unable to satisfy its obligations under the warrants. You should not buy a warrant unless you are prepared to sustain a total loss of the money you have invested plus the commission or other transaction costs.

An investment in warrants involves valuation risks in relation to the underlying asset, which may vary over time and may increase or decrease by reference to various factors, which may include corporate actions (where the underlying asset is a share or a basket of shares), changes in computation or composition (where the underlying asset is an index), macro economic factors and market trends. Although the issuer may be required or permitted to adjust or amend the conditions of the warrants under certain circumstances, if an event occurs which does not require the issuer to make such adjustments, the price of the warrants and the return upon the exercise of the warrants may be affected.

In the case of exchange-traded warrants, it is not possible to predict the price at which the warrants will trade in the secondary market or whether such market will be liquid or illiquid. To the extent that warrants of a particular issue are exercised, the number of warrants of such issue outstanding will decrease, resulting in a diminished liquidity for the remaining warrants of such issue. A decrease in the liquidity of an issue of warrants may in turn cause an increase in the volatility associated with the price of such issue of warrants. To the extent that an issue of warrants becomes illiquid, the buyer may have to exercise such warrant to realise value. In respect of European-style warrants, as they are only exercisable on the expiration date, you will not be able to exercise your warrants to realise value in the event that the relevant issue becomes illiquid.

Forwards and futures

What are forwards and futures?

Forwards and futures entail the obligation to deliver or take delivery on a specified expiration date of a defined quantity of an underlying at a price agreed on the contract date. Forwards and futures can involve special risks and are therefore only suitable for investors who are familiar with this type of instrument, have sufficient liquid assets and are able to absorb any losses that may arise.

Futures are traded on an exchange. They take the form of contracts in which the quantity of the underlying and the expiration date are standardised. Forwards are not traded on an exchange; hence they are referred to as OTC (over-the-counter) forwards. Their specifications may also be standardised; otherwise they may be agreed between the buyer and the seller. Underlyings for forwards and futures include assets such as equities, currencies, bonds, commodities and precious metals, and benchmarks such as interest rates and indices.

Risks of trading in forwards and futures

Margin requirements: On buying or (short) selling an underlying asset on the futures market, you must supply a specified initial margin on agreement of the contract. This is usually a percentage of the total value of the contracted instruments. In addition, a variation margin is calculated periodically during the life of the contract. This corresponds to the book profit or loss arising from any change in value in the contract or underlying instrument. In the event of a book loss, the variation margin can be several times as large as the initial margin. The terms for calculating the variation margin are laid down in the applicable exchange regulations or contract provisions. You will be obliged to deposit the required initial or variation margin cover with your broker for the entire life of the contract.

Forward sales and purchases: For forward sales, the underlying must be delivered at the price originally agreed even if its market value has since risen above the agreed price. In such a case, you risk losing the difference between these two amounts. Theoretically, there is no limit to how far the market value of the underlying can rise. Hence, potential losses are similarly unlimited and can substantially exceed the margin requirements. For forward purchases, you must take delivery of the underlying at the price originally agreed even if its market value has since fallen below the agreed price. Your potential loss corresponds to the difference between these two values. Your maximum loss corresponds to the originally agreed price. Potential losses can substantially exceed the margin requirements. In order to limit price fluctuations, an exchange may set price limits for certain contracts. Find out what price limits are in place before effecting forward or futures transactions. This is important since closing out a contract can otherwise be much more difficult or even impossible. If you sell forward an underlying which you do not hold at the outset of the contract, this is referred to as a short sale. In this case, you risk having to acquire the underlying at an unfavourable market price in order to fulfil your obligation to effect delivery on the contract's expiration date.

OTC forwards: There is no actual market for OTC forwards agreed individually, and hence such positions may only be closed out with the agreement of the counterparty.

Combinations: Since combinations comprise various elements, the closing out of individual elements can considerably alter the risks inherent in the overall position. Before entering into any such transaction, be sure to consult your broker about the particular risks involved. Given the many possible combinations, it is impossible to go into detail in this document the risks involved in any particular case.

Contracts for differences

Certain futures, forward or option contracts are contracts for differences which provide for adjustment between the parties based on the respective values or levels of certain assets or reference indices at the time of the contracts and at an agreed future time. These can be options as well as commodities, securities, currencies, interest rate swaps, etc. There is no delivery on these contracts which can only be settled in cash. Further, the underlying currency of these contracts may not have a ready market. Consequently, these contracts may be very illiquid and in such event, you may sustain substantial losses as the bid/offer spreads may be very wide if the market moves against your position. Essentially, contracts for differences carry the same risks as investing in a futures contract, forward or an option and you should be aware of these as set out above. Transactions in contracts for differences may also have margin requirements and you should be aware of the implications of this as set out above.

Structured Products

What are structured products?

Structured products are combinations of two or more financial instruments. At least one of them will typically be a derivative. Together, they form a new investment product. Structured products can be traded either on-exchange or over-the-counter. Every structured product has its own risk profile since the risks of their individual components may be reduced, eliminated or increased. Hence it is particularly important that you are fully aware of the risks involved before acquiring any such product. Such information can be found in the relevant product literature or the contractual terms for the product.

What are structured products with capital protection?

Structured products with capital protection consist of two elements: a fixed-income investment (especially a bond or a money market investment) and an option. This combination enables the holder to participate in the price movements of one or more underlying assets (via the option or participation component) while at the same time limiting potential losses (via the bond or capital protection component). The capital protection component may only cover a portion of the capital invested and can be well under 100% of the capital invested, depending on the product. Capital protection therefore does not mean 100% repayment of the purchase price for all products. The option component usually comprises one option or a combination of options. The risks this component entails therefore correspond to those of the corresponding option or option combination. Depending on the underlying's market value, it can expire without value. The participation and protection elements can be separated, depending on the product in question. This allows you to retain or dispose of each individual component separately.

Risks of structured products

Every structured product has its own risk profile resulting from the interaction of its component risks. Since there is almost limitless potential to combine product elements, we cannot go into detail here about the risks involved in any particular case. Before effecting any such transaction, be sure that you are fully aware of the risks involved. Such information can be found, for example, in the relevant product literature.

Issuer's credit risk and liquidity risk: With structured products, buyers can only assert their rights against the issuer. Hence, alongside the market risk, particular attention needs to be paid to issuer risk. You therefore need to be aware that, as well as any potential loss you may incur due to a fall in the market value of the underlying, a total loss of your investment is possible if the issuer should default. You should also note that while market makers, who in most cases are the issuers themselves, normally guarantee that structured products are tradable, liquidity risks cannot be excluded.

Risks arising from equity and commodity linked notes and other structured securities: Certain notes and securities may be linked to the performance of equities, currencies, commodities or other underlying references. You should study the terms of such products carefully and understand the risks involved. Such instruments may not be capital guaranteed and you may sustain a total or partial loss of your investment. Moreover, the share purchase mechanism embedded in equity linked notes could result in the holder being required to take delivery of the underlying reference shares at maturity instead of a cash amount. In relation to structured notes ("Notes") where the returns on the Notes are linked directly or indirectly (such as via options) to changes in the market of the underlying instrument, you will be exposed to price volatility in the market. You should therefore make your own assessment of the relevant market concerned. You should note that the underlying instrument may be traded in different jurisdiction and on different markets. The market on which the Notes may be traded may be different from the market on which the underlying instrument is traded. Accordingly, the nature of the risks a holder of the Notes is subject to may be very complex.

The Notes may provide that the issuer may discharge its obligations by delivery of the underlying instrument to you on the maturity of the Notes. If the underlying instrument is a basket of shares, these shares which are delivered to you may be traded in a foreign stock market. You should be aware of the implications in relation to this method of settlement; in particular, you may have to open and maintain accounts with a custodian for the purpose of settlement, and pay related costs and expenses in relation to the settlement. By holding the shares or the basket of shares, you may also be subject to the regulatory and disclosure requirements of the jurisdictions in which the issuer of each of the shares is incorporated or carries on business and the shares are traded. There may also be restrictions relating to the trading of the shares and holding of the shares and you are strongly advised to seek independent advice on these issues. You should also note that once you receive shares traded in a foreign jurisdiction, you will be subject to all risks relating to making an investment in shares in that jurisdiction. Accordingly, you have to be aware of risks such as exchange control risks, currency risks, transactional risks which include suspension of trading, extreme market conditions, failure of telecommunications or electronic systems, and events commonly known as "force majeure".

You are subject to exchange rate risks as the Notes may not be denominated in the same currency as the currency in which the underlying instrument is traded and settled. As the underlying instrument may be traded in different jurisdictions, the currency in which the reference underlying instrument for the Notes is traded may differ from the currency in which the same underlying instrument is traded in a different jurisdiction. Therefore, your returns on the Notes depend not only on the value of the underlying instrument but on the exchange rate between, the two currencies on the maturity of the Notes. If settlement is effected by the delivery of the underlying instrument, your returns in the form of proceeds from the sale of the underlying instrument may be in a currency different from the currency in which the Notes are denominated.

If the underlying instrument is a stock or commodity index, you should note that the value of the underlying instrument may change if the method of calculating the index is changed notwithstanding that the market for the underlying component stocks or commodities remains unchanged.

Although the Notes may be listed on a stock exchange, there may not be a secondary market for the Notes. Accordingly you may not be able to find a purchaser for the Notes should you wish to dispose of the Notes and the Notes may not have any market value. You should expect that you are required to hold the Notes until its maturity.

You should also note that the tax implications of the Notes may be different from the underlying instrument.

Synthetic products

What are synthetic products?

Synthetic products are essentially covered options and certificates and are characterised by their identical or similar profit and loss structures when compared with specific traditional financial instruments such as equities or bonds, Basket certificates are on example. These are based on a specified number of selected stocks.

Synthetic products can be traded either on-exchange or over-the-counter. Note that the risks associated with synthetic products need not be the same as the risks associated with the financial instruments they contain, hence, it is particularly important that you are fully aware of the risks involved before acquiring any such product. Such information can be found, for example, in the relevant product literature. Two examples of synthetic products are synthetic covered options and certificates.

What is synthetic covered option?

A covered option involves the purchase of an underlying asset (equity, bond or currency) and the writing of a call option on that same asset. In return, you are paid a premium, which limits your loss in the event of a fall in the market value of the underlying asset. By the same token, however, your potential return from any increased in the asset's market value is limited to gains up to the option's strike price. Traditional covered options require that the underlying asset be lodged as collateral.

Synthetic covered options are based on the idea of duplicating traditional covered options. This can only be achieved by means of a transaction. Both the purchase of the underlying asset and the writing of the call option are carried out synthetically using derivatives. The purchase price of such a product is identical to that of the underlying, less the premium received for the sale of the call option. Hence, the synthetic product is sold more cheaply than its underlying.

Risks associated with synthetic covered options

Unlike structured products with capital protection, synthetic covered options do not contain a hedge against losses in the market value of the underlying. However, by writing a call option (traditional covered option) or by calculating the return from the sale of a call option into the product price (synthetic covered option), any loss in market value of the underlying is lower than it would be in the case of a direct investment. The option premium thereby limits any loss in market value of the underlying.

Either cash settlement or physical delivery of the underlying takes place on the expiration date: if the market value of the underlying on expiration is higher than the strike price, you are paid a specified cash amount as settlement, If however, it is lower than the strike price, you receive physical delivery of the underlying asset. In this case, you carry the full risk associated with the underlying.

What are certificates?

A certificate accords a right that is either based on several underlyings or has a value derived from several indicators. This allows you, even for a low capital investment, to achieve diversification over a broad range of investment opportunities or risk factors and so reduce the level of your risk. The main types of certificates are:

- * Index certificates. These reflect a whole market, being based on an official index (e.g. Straits Times Index or STI).
- * Region certificates. These are derived from a series of indices or companies from a certain region (e.g. Eastern Europe, Pacific, etc.).
- * Basket certificates. These are derived from a selection of national or international companies active in a certain sector (e.g. biotechnology, telecoms, mechanical engineering), indices, bonds or other underlyings.

Certificates are securitised and have a limited duration. Redemption occurs on expiration and equals:

- * A set amount per index point for an index certificate.
- * The difference between the market value on expiration and the strike price for a region or basket certificate.

Risk associated with certificates

Investments in index, region or basket certificates basically involve the same level of potential loss as a direct investment in the corresponding equities themselves. Compared with a direct investment, certificates offer greater risk diversification. However, this does not mean the risk is eliminated - it may simply be transposed onto the market and sector risks. In contrast to a direct investment in equities, certificates do not confer any voting rights nor do they entitle the holder to a dividend payment. Certificates also carry an issuer risk i.e. the credit risk associated with the issuing bank.

Section C - Additional information

Investments in non-traditional funds (hedge funds and offshore funds)

What are non-traditional funds?

Non-traditional funds are funds or investment companies that differ from traditional equity and bond investments on account of their investment style. The most common form of non-traditional fund is the hedge fund, which - in spite of its name - does not necessarily have anything to do with hedging. Many hedge funds aim to make a profit and sometimes take on very high levels of risk. Hedge funds include all types of investment funds, investment companies and partnerships that use derivatives for investment rather than hedging purposes, that can carry out short sales or that can attain significant leverages from the investment of borrowed capital. Additional features of hedge funds are their free choice of investment categories, markets (including emerging markets) and trading methods. Hedge funds generally demand high minimum investments. They offer no more than limited subscription and redemption rights with lengthy notice periods. Portfolio managers of hedge funds receive performance-linked bonuses and often have a personal stake in the fund.

What risks do you need to be aware of?

Non-traditional investments can take countless different forms. Hence we cannot go into detail here about the risks involved in any particular case. Before making any such investments, be sure to seek comprehensive advice about the particular risks involved and to study carefully any offers.

Investment strategies are often high-risk. Due to leverage, a small movement in the market can lead to a major gain, but any losses will also be magnified sharply. The entire amount of your investment can, under certain circumstances, be lost.

It is not uncommon for there to be little information available concerning a non-traditional investment. Moreover, many investment strategies are highly complex and very difficult to understand. Changes in strategy that can lead to a substantial increase in the level of risk are often virtually overlooked, accorded too little attention or noticed too late.

The liquidity and tradability of non-traditional investments can vary a great deal. Hedge fund issues and redemptions are often only monthly, quarterly or annually. Fixed holding periods lasting many years are not unusual. Provisions regarding trading frequency and holding periods may change frequently and rapidly. Liquidations can stretch over many years.

What are offshore funds?

Many funds in this category have an offshore domicile which earns them the name offshore funds. They are subject to less stringent legislation and supervision, which in turn offers poorer investor protection. Problems or delays may also arise in the settlement of buy and sell orders for units in such funds. There is no guarantee that an investor's legal rights will be enforceable.

Investments In emerging markets

What are the emerging markets?

Emerging markets are the markets for securities trading in countries that possess one or more of the following characteristics:

- * A certain degree of political instability
- * Relatively unpredictable financial markets and economic growth patterns
- * A financial market that is still at the development stage
- * A weak economy

According to the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) criteria, the emerging markets are all countries except: Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Hong Kong, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Portugal, Singapore, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, the UK and the US. These countries' markets are described as the established markets.

Risks to be borne in mind

There are risks linked to investments in emerging markets that are not encountered in their more established counterparts. This is also the case when the issuer or provider of a product has its headquarters or primary focus of activity in an emerging nation. Such risks include (without limitation) sovereign risk, issuer risk, price risk and liquidity risk. Investing in the products of such issuers or providers is therefore often speculative.

Although investments in emerging markets related instruments can yield high gains, they can also be highly risky as the markets are unpredictable and there may be inadequate regulation and safeguards available to investors. Before investing in emerging markets, you should form an impression of them that allows you to assess the risks involved.

- 3.4 KGI Securities may at its sole discretion do whatever it considers necessary or desirable in providing its services to the Client including the employment of or placing orders with any agent, Custodian, correspondent, broker, dealer, client or company, whether or not associated with KGI Securities, to perform all or any part of KGI Securities's duties as it deems appropriate for the purpose of effecting any Transactions on the Client's behalf.

Accordingly, the Client hereby acknowledges and consents to the fact that any Securities and/or Derivatives (which as between KGI Securities and the Client are to be regarded as purchased by the Client) may or will be regarded by any and/or every such broker as being the Securities and/or Derivatives purchased by KGI Securities for itself. This may in some instances result in prejudice to the Client. For example, in certain circumstances the Client's Securities, Derivatives or properties may be used to satisfy obligations of KGI Securities or other Clients of KGI Securities. The Client accepts that this is a necessary risk of dealing in such jurisdictions through KGI Securities.

- 6.2 KGI Securities may at its discretion from time to time require the Client to place with KGI Securities a deposit in respect of which no interest shall accrue or be payable by KGI Securities, a sum equivalent to the value of Securities to be purchased under the Account(s) and, if so required the Client shall place such a deposit with KGI Securities failing which KGI Securities shall be entitled to refuse to carry out the Client's instructions.
- 6.3 All payments to be made by the Client to KGI Securities under the Agreement or in respect of any Transaction hereunder, shall be made to KGI Securities free and clear of and without deduction or deferment in respect of any demand, set-off, counter claim or other dispute or in respect of any withholding or other taxes, duties or levies of any nature. If the Client is required by any applicable law to make any deduction or withholding from any amount payable to KGI Securities under the Agreement or in respect of any Transaction hereunder, the Client shall increase the amount payable so as to ensure that KGI Securities receives and its entitled to retain, after such deduction or withholding, a sum which KGI Securities would have received and be entitled to retain had that deduction or withholding not been required.

7. Interest and Costs

The Client agrees to pay interest on all amounts owed by the Client to KGI Securities after as well as before judgment at such rate or rates and on such periodic rests as KGI Securities shall determine from time to time, from the due date of payment of such amounts until receipt of payments thereof by KGI Securities.

8. Set-Off

- 8.1 The Client hereby authorises KGI Securities to keep all amounts due to the Client, including sale proceeds and contra gains, in the Client's account and utilise the monies to set off against any purchases or contra losses and expenses thereby incurred or such other amounts owing by the Client to KGI Securities.
- 8.2 KGI Securities shall be entitled, without notice to the Client, to set-off any amount owing by the Client to KGI Securities against any amount standing to the Client's credit under the Account and any money payable by KGI Securities to the Client whether such amounts are incurred under or pursuant to the Account or otherwise, are actual or contingent or in a currency different from the currency in the Account or the currency of the amount payable to the Client by KGI Securities.
- 8.3 KGI Securities shall be entitled to convert all amounts (if denominated in any currency other than Singapore dollars) to be set-off under this paragraph 12 to Singapore dollars at such exchange rates as KGI Securities may prescribe from time to time.

9. Liability and Force Majeure

- a. KGI Securities shall not be liable to the Client for any default in performance of its obligations hereunder or any loss or damage suffered by Client directly or indirectly arising from or due to any events or circumstances beyond KGI Securities's control, including (without limitation) acts of God, riot, civil strike, labour disputes, explosions, suspension of trading, war, natural disaster, governmental restriction, breakdown or failure of transmission, communication or computer facilities, industrial action, or the failure of any relevant correspondent, Custodian or other agent or principal of KGI Securities, or any depository, dealer, exchange, clearing house or regulatory or self-regulatory organisation, to perform its obligations for any reason.
- b. Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing, KGI Securities shall not be liable to the Client for any loss or damage that the Client may suffer (i) due to acts, omissions or failure of KGI Securities (or any of its employees or agents) to execute or perform any Transactions which KGI Securities is authorised to do under the Agreement or pursuant to any instructions from the Client and/or the Authorised Person, (ii) in respect of any advice or opinion which may be given to the Client, (iii) in respect of any entry, or omission to make any entry, in the Account which may be made or required to be made or otherwise in connection with any instructions from the Client or the Authorised Person, or (iv) arising in any manner whatsoever from the holding of Securities by KGI Securities and/or Custodian for or on the Client's behalf (whether for safekeeping or any other purpose whatsoever), including, without limitation, loss or destruction of any such Securities.

10. Trust Account - Interest Waiver

- 10.1 The Client acknowledges and is aware that the Client is entitled to the interest (if any) earned from all amounts standing to the credit of the Client in a trust account maintained by KGI Securities for the Client. The Client further acknowledges that it would be administratively and operationally difficult, if not impossible (in view of constant fluctuation of the aggregate balance in such account), to account separately for each of KGI Securities's Clients the interest due (if any) on such amounts standing to their credit in the trust account as interest will be received on a lump sum basis. In any event, it is also acknowledged and accepted that such exercise would be likely to cost more than any interest earned. In these circumstances, the Client agrees to waive and relinquish in KGI Securities's favour all claims for Interest that may otherwise accrue with respect to such amounts standing to the Client's credit in the trust account. The Client by applying to open an account with KGI Securities and be a client of KGI Securities and/or accessing or using any of KGI Securities's services shall therefore be deemed to have agreed (and KGI Securities will and does materially rely on the effectiveness of such agreement) to such waiver and relinquishment. KGI Securities may however at its sole and absolute discretion from time to time pay interest as it may determine to the Client in relation to such Client's monies after taking into the account any withholding tax and any administrative expenses incurred by KGI Securities in maintaining the Trust Account and Client agrees and acknowledges that any interest paid by KGI Securities to the Client may be less than that received by KGI Securities.

11. Trust Account - Custodian

- 11.1 The Client hereby authorizes and directs KGI Securities and/or through KGI Securities to the Custodian that any money standing to the credit of an Account denominated in Singapore dollars shall be held in a trust account maintained by KGI Securities and/or Custodian with one or more banks in Singapore. The Client hereby authorizes and instructs KGI Securities and/or through KGI Securities to the Custodian that any money standing to the credit of an Account which is not denominated in Singapore dollars may be held by KGI Securities and/or Custodian, at its discretion, in a trust account maintained by KGI Securities and/or Custodian for the Client with a financial institution outside Singapore, which is licensed, registered or authorized to conduct banking business in the country where the account is maintained. The Client hereby agrees that all monies held by KGI Securities or the Custodian (whether with a bank in Singapore or a financial institution outside Singapore as aforesaid) may be held on a commingled or aggregated basis with all monies held by KGI Securities or the Custodian for other Clients of KGI Securities.

12. Risks Disclosure

- 12.1 The Client is aware of the risks involved in trading in Securities including foreign exchange risks and acknowledges in particular that his orders placed with KGI Securities's representatives and Transactions done have been placed and done after exercising his own independent judgment and without relying on any recommendation or advice from KGI Securities or any of KGI Securities's representatives. The Client acknowledges that all trading information, price quotations or trade reports given to the Client may be subject to change and error as well as delays in reporting and that reliance on such information is at the Client's sole risk.

- 12.2 The Client hereby agrees and acknowledges that in the event the Client directs or instructs KGI Securities to carry out any Transaction on the Client's behalf on an exchange or other market on which such transactions are effected in a foreign currency, unless the Client indicates to the contrary at the time of the giving of instructions to carry out any such Transactions, all such Transactions shall as between KGI Securities and the Client be settled in Singapore Dollars at a rate of exchange determined by KGI Securities in its sole discretion on the basis of the then prevailing rates of exchange between such currencies.

13. Indemnity

22. Communications

- 22.1 The Client accepts that all telephone conversations may be recorded by KGI Securities and such recordings will be KGI Securities's sole property and consents to the use of such recordings and transcripts thereof for any purpose which KGI Securities deems desirable including as evidence in any dispute. Any such recording may be used in evidence and shall constitute prima facie evidence of the communications so recorded. KGI Securities shall not be obliged to maintain or provide copies of any recording made. The Client expressly acknowledges that copies of recordings made will be periodically erased or destroyed by KGI Securities in the ordinary course and the Client further acknowledges and agrees that no adverse inference whatsoever shall be drawn against KGI Securities on account of any unavailability of any part or whole of such recordings.
- 22.2 Any electronic record relating to the terms and conditions of the DMA Services provided hereunder kept and/or maintained by KGI Securities shall be conclusive evidence of the contents thereof. The Client agrees to the admission as evidence in any court in Singapore of such electronic records maintained or kept by KGI Securities and any part, copy or computer output thereof, as an original document, and the Client further agrees not to challenge or dispute the admissibility, authenticity or accuracy of such electronic records or computer output thereof.
- 22.3 The Client acknowledges and agrees that KGI Securities's representatives may carry out dealing activities or otherwise operate outside KGI Securities's office premise and, in this respect, the Client acknowledges and agree that:
- (a) It is in the Client's own interest not to use the representative's address as mailing address for contract notes, statements and correspondences from KGI Securities.
 - (b) The Client may give instructions to KGI Securities using the telephone or via the online service, unless KGI Securities agrees to accept other forms of communication, and such orders are subject to these Terms and Conditions.

 - (e) The Client agrees to communicate, give instructions and/or place orders only with the representative assigned by KGI Securities to the Client.

23. Representatives

- 23.1 The Client confirms that in the purchase and/or sale of any Securities under the Account(s) by any representative on the Client's and/or the Authorised Person's instructions or though without their instructions but with their consent and/or authority (expressed, implied or otherwise) and/or knowledge, such representative shall be deemed to be the Client's agent whether or not such representative is deemed to be engaged or employed by the Client in law. The Client will, as between KGI Securities and the Client, be liable for all purchases and sales of Securities executed by the representative for the Account regardless of whether the representative would also be liable to KGI Securities for the same and the Client shall be liable to KGI Securities for all costs, expenses, damages, losses, fees, charges, rates or duties which may be incurred by KGI Securities in respect of all such Securities transacted. In addition, the Client confirms that in the purchase and/or sale of any Securities under the Account(s) by any representative, such representative shall be deemed to be the Client's agent and KGI Securities is entitled to assume that as between KGI Securities and the Client (i) any order said by the representative to be intended to be executed for the Client is so intended; and (ii) every order executed by the representative for the Client is the order intended to be executed by the Client.

- 23.2 The Client further confirms that any representative authorised by the Client and/or the Authorised Person to collect and/or deliver share scrips and/or any other Securities purchased or sold by them shall be deemed to be the Client's agent in the collection and/or delivery of such share scrips and/or other Securities.
- 23.3 In the event that the Client obtains financing from a bank or other institution on an ad hoc basis, the Client authorises KGI Securities to deliver securities to such financing bank or institution as his representative may from time to time instruct KGI Securities.
- 23.4 No representative is authorised and every representative is in fact prohibited to waive or vary any of KGI Securities's rights under the terms and conditions. Neither is any of them allowed to accept any liability on KGI Securities's behalf.

24. Investment Advice and Disclaimers

- 24.1 Without prejudice to paragraph 2.4, the Client acknowledges that KGI Securities prohibits any of its officers, employees or representatives from giving any representations, trading suggestions, recommendations or information on KGI Securities's behalf under any circumstances or through any form or medium, whether by or through the Electronic Trading Service, email or otherwise that KGI Securities is not itself legally obliged to give. Any such representations, trading suggestions, recommendations or information if made, including without limitation those made via the Electronic Trading Service or email, must therefore be regarded as having been made in the personal capacity of such officer, employee or representative. The Client cannot and shall not fault KGI Securities nor hold KGI Securities liable for any losses that the Client suffers if the Client relies on such representations, trading suggestions, recommendations or information.
- 24.2 The Client may from time to time be provided with investment and financial related information and reports, including but not limited to research reports and market or securities specific analysis. The Client further acknowledges and agrees that such information is provided to the Client for its information only. All of such information, reports and analysis are and should be taken as having been prepared for the purpose of general circulation and none are made with regard to any specific investment objective, financial situation or the particular needs of any particular person who may receive the information, report or analysis (including the Client). Any recommendation or advice that may be expressed in or inferred from such information, reports or analysis therefore does not take into account and may not be suitable for the Client's investment objectives, financial situation and particular needs.
- 24.3 Without prejudice to or detracting from this paragraph 28, the recommendation or advice that the Client may receive from KGI Securities or any of KGI Securities's officers, employee or representatives may be general or specific and the Client needs to understand and take note of the different implications of each type of recommendation or advice received by the Client.
- 24.4 Generally, while the Client is entitled to expect its trading representative to answer the Client's queries honestly, the Client should not assume that such answers are specifically suitable for reliance by the Client. Unless KGI Securities specifically confirms that answers provided to the Client's questions are specific recommendations specifically suitable for the Client's reliance, the Client must assume that the answers are intended as general answers such trading representatives would give regardless of which of KGI Securities's clients is asking the question and is at best thus like answers for general circulation rather than in specific compliance with the Client's needs and at best represent honest opinions intended for general circulation.
- 24.5 It is a material part of the Client being allowed to open and maintain an Account with KGI Securities that the Client agrees that in the event the Client requires KGI Securities to provide execution related advice which are specific (i.e. specifically tailored for the Client's investment objective, financial situation or particular needs) and not general opinions, advice or recommendation, the Client must first provide KGI Securities with full information about the Client for KGI Securities to know such specific investment objectives, financial situation or particular needs failing which the Client must assume sole responsibility for determining the suitability of any and all advice or recommendation the Client may receive either from KGI Securities or the Client's trading representative for the Client's reliance and follow through. Providing KGI Securities with full information means providing KGI Securities with the information and answers KGI Securities requests of the Client in the CIP Questionnaire and such supplemental information and answers as KGI Securities may ask the Client as are reasonably relevant in the circumstances and providing the same fully and not merely partially.
- 24.6 The Client retains the right to make its own suitability determination. However, if the Client wishes KGI Securities to make a suitability determination for the Client, where relevant, the Client must first provide KGI Securities with the required information.
- 24.7 If the Client fails to return the duly completed CIP Questionnaire or refuses to answer in full any question required by KGI Securities or to provide in full the information sought by KGI Securities, the Client must then assume that KGI Securities cannot identify the Client's investment objectives, financial circumstances and particular needs and ascertain the suitability of the information provided and therefore any advice or recommendation provided in respect of the Client's Account(s) with KGI Securities by any officer, employee or representative of KGI Securities shall be treated at best as only general advice or recommendation that may not be specifically suitable for the Client.
- 24.8 Where the Client has failed or refused or is deemed to have failed or refused to provide KGI Securities with any information or answers as requested by KGI Securities, then the Client will also be taken as having acknowledged (and KGI Securities will be regarding and materially relying on the Client having acknowledged) that KGI Securities cannot identify with any certainty the Client's investment objectives, financial circumstances and particular needs and therefore the Client agrees that any advice or recommendation provided in respect to the Client's Account(s) with KGI Securities by KGI Securities or any of KGI Securities's duly authorized officers, employees or representatives shall be treated as at best only as general advice or recommendation and the Client acknowledges and agrees that such advice does not take into account and may not be suitable for the Client's investment objectives, financial situation and particular needs.
- 24.9 The Client also acknowledges and agrees that even where the Client has provided a duly and fully completed CIP Questionnaire, the Client should note that only with respect to unsolicited and unqualified advice and recommendation, i.e. a specific buy or sell recommendation specifically addressed to the Client given otherwise than in response to the Client's query or request (for which the Client should only expect general and honest answers), the Client is entitled to regard the advice and recommendation given as specific advice reasonably suitable to the Client's investment objectives, financial situation and particular needs as may be reasonably inferred from the answers provided in the CIP Questionnaire.
- 24.10 In connection with the foregoing, the Client should note that KGI Securities does not permit the giving of such specific advice by any of its officers, employees or representatives unless it is pursuant to a specific and formal advisory agreement between the Client and KGI Securities for which KGI Securities does and will charge a separate fee. Accordingly if the Client does not have any such agreement with KGI Securities but the Client's trading representative cold calls the Client and gives any specific advice or recommendation to the Client, the Client must assume, unless he is specifically and formally authorised to do so by KGI Securities for that occasion, that such advice or recommendation are given in such trading representative's own personal capacity for which KGI Securities does not and will not accept any responsibility or liability for.

- 24.11 Except if given pursuant to a specific advisory agreement (and for the payment of an agreed and additional fee for such advice or recommendation), the Client must and should regard any advice or recommendation given in response to the Client's request or question as in the nature of general advice or recommendation and again the Client acknowledges and agrees that such advice may not be suitable for the Client's investment objectives, financial situation and particular needs.
- 24.12 Only if the Client has provided full information and answers as requested by KGI Securities in the CIP Questionnaire and KGI Securities's supplementary questions and requests and then only in respect of unsolicited advice and recommendations from a duly authorized officer, employee or representative of KGI Securities duly authorized to give such advice and recommendations is the Client then entitled to regard the advice and recommendation given as specific advice given after having taken into account the Client's investment objectives, financial situation and particular needs as may be reasonably inferred from the Client's answers.
- 24.13 The Client need not complete the CIP Questionnaire if the Client is an accredited investor (see further the statements and notifications in the CIP Questionnaire relevant to situations where the Client's status as an accredited investor changes) as in such situations, KGI Securities is under and will accept no duty to determine the suitability of any recommendation or advice provided to the Client. An accredited investor has the meaning as ascribed to it in the Securities and Futures Act, Chapter 289 of Singapore.
- 24.14 Please note that it is also the Client's responsibility to update KGI Securities should there be any changes to the Client's investment objectives, financial situation or particular needs after the return of the above duly completed CIP Questionnaire, failing which KGI Securities is entitled to assume that the information and answers provided remain complete and accurate.
- 24.15 Please also note the other qualifications and notice of disclaimers in the CIP Questionnaire. They are important and should be read, understood and accepted as a condition to the Client being allowed to open and/or maintain an Account with KGI Securities, regardless of whether the Client intends or needs to fill up the CIP Questionnaire.
- 24.16 In relation to EIPs:
- (a) As noted in the Guide and Cautionary Notes, KGI Securities and all its representatives provide execution only services in relation to Transactions and intended Transactions in EIPs. Consistent with the foregoing and the Client's representations and warranties to KGI Securities, for the Client's Transactions in EIPs the Client and only the Client is solely responsible for determining the merits or suitability of any and all Transactions that the Client may enter into with or through KGI Securities.
 - (b) It is also a material term of the Client's Account that in relation to EIPs, while the Client is entitled to expect its trading representative to answer its queries honestly, the Client must not assume that such answers are in the nature of advice or recommendation, let alone that they are advice or recommendation that are specifically suitable for reliance by the Client. No statement made or provided to the Client (apart from generally circulating advice specifically identified as such) by KGI Securities or any officer, employee or representative of KGI Securities, as noted in the Guide and Cautionary Notes, is intended to be nor is to be regarded as amounting to any advice or recommendation of any nature to the Client. They are at best, and the Client must accept this as a condition for having and maintaining an Account with KGI Securities to transact in EIPs, statements of either fact or (if not a fact) then of personal opinion not amounting and not intended to be advice or recommendation.
- 24.17 For Transactions in SIPs:
- (a) The Client may from time to time receive advice or recommendation. Where advice or recommendation is provided, then where it is not Paid Advice, it is execution-related advice for the purposes of the Agreement.
 - (b) Please be reminded that it is a material part of the Client being allowed to open and maintain an Account with KGI Securities that the Client agrees that in the event the Client, as a Retail Singapore Client, requires KGI Securities in providing execution-related advice to ensure that such execution-related advice is reasonably suitable for the Client bearing in mind the Client's financial situation, ability and willingness to bear relevant risks and the Client's investment objectives that the Client must first provide KGI Securities with full information for KGI Securities to know such specific investment objectives, financial situation and ability and willingness to bear the relevant risks. If the Client does not do so, then the Client must assume sole responsibility for determining the merits or suitability of any and all execution-related advice received by it before the Client relies on the same to enter into any SIP Transaction.
 - (c) Please note that providing KGI Securities with full information means providing KGI Securities with the information and answers KGI Securities requests of the Client in the CIP Questionnaire that has been provided to the Client (if the Client has not received the same the Client must ask KGI Securities for a copy of the CIP Questionnaire as KGI Securities will assume for any and all of the Client's Transactions with and through KGI Securities that the Client has been provided a copy) and such supplemental information as KGI Securities may ask the Client as are reasonably relevant in the circumstances and the Client's answers thereto, providing the same fully and not merely partially.
 - (d) The Client retains the right to make its own suitability determination, however, if the Client wishes KGI Securities to make a suitability determination for the Client, where relevant, the Client must first provide KGI Securities with the required information.
 - (e) If the Client fails to return the duly completed CIP Questionnaire or refuses to answer in full any questions required by KGI Securities or to provide in full the information sought by KGI Securities, the Client must then assume that KGI Securities cannot, until the Client actually corrects that deficiency, align any ERA with the Client's investment objectives, ability and willingness to take relevant risks, financial circumstances and particular needs and therefore any ERA provided in respect of the Client's Account(s) with KGI Securities by any of its officers, employees or representatives shall be treated at best as only general advice or recommendation that may not be specifically suitable for the Client.
 - (f) Where the Client has failed or refused or is deemed to have failed or refused to provide KGI Securities with any information or answers as requested then the Client will also be taken as having acknowledged (and KGI Securities will be regarding and materially relying on the Client as having acknowledged) that KGI Securities cannot identify with any certainty the Client's investment objectives, financial circumstances and particular needs and therefore the Client agrees that any ERA provided in respect to SIPs by KGI Securities, any of its duly authorized officers, employees or representatives shall be treated as at best only as general advice or recommendation and the Client acknowledges and agrees that such advice does not take into account and may not be suitable for the Client's investment objectives, financial situation and particular needs.
 - (g) As also noted in the Guide and Cautionary Notes, in no event is KGI Securities willing, and it is a condition of the Client being allowed to open and/or operate an Account with KGI Securities for dealings in SIP that the Client accepts that KGI Securities is neither obliged nor will, provide any execution-related advice that is reasonably suitable for the Client bearing in mind the Client's financial situation, ability and willingness to bear relevant risks and the Client's investment objectives where the Client is not a Retail Singapore Client. The Client therefore need not and should not, if it is not a Retail Singapore Client complete the CIP Questionnaire if it is an accredited investor (see further the statements and notifications in the CIP Questionnaire relevant to situations where the Client's status as an accredited investor changes) as in such a situation KGI Securities is under and will accept no duty to determine the suitability of any recommendation or advice provided to the Client. An accredited investor has the meaning as ascribed to it in the Securities and Futures Act, Chapter 289 of Singapore.

24.18 The Client represents, warrants and undertakes on a continuing basis that:

- (a) it has received, read and understands and accepts that the level(s) of services available to the Client will, where the Client is a Retail Singapore Client, vary depending on whether the Client is transacting or intending to transact in an SIP or an EIP. The Client further and specifically confirms that it has read and understood all the contents of the Guide and Cautionary Notes and accepts the conditions and limitations for each and every service available to the Client depending on whether the Client is transacting or intending to transact in an SIP or an EIP;
- (b) any order of the Client, with the sole exception of orders placed consistently and in accordance with Paid Advice or Guided Advice (given where the Client had provided all relevant information to KGI Securities to enable such Paid Advice or Guided Advice to take into account the Client's financial resources, ability and willingness to take relevant risks and financial objectives), placed or any other dealings in the Account(s) is solely and exclusively based on its own judgment and after its own independent appraisal and investigation into the risks associated with such orders and its own independent determination of the order being specifically suitable for the Client based on the Client's own assessment of its financial resources, ability and willingness to take relevant risks and financial objectives; and
- (c) it has read, understood and accepted the terms for KGI Securities's provision of services to the Client as described in the Guide and Cautionary Notes and therefore that where the Client is not a Retail Singapore Client, KGI Securities, except in relation to Paid Advice,
- (d) provides the Client with solely execution only services for and with respect to all the Client's Transactions with or through KGI Securities. As such the Client also accepts sole responsibility for determining the merits or suitability of any and all Transactions that it may enter into with or through KGI Securities.

25. Contract Notes and Statements

- 25.1 KGI Securities will provide the Client with a written contract note/statement of each Securities Transaction effected in relation to the Account(s). Such contract note and/or statement shall be conclusive and binding against the Client unless objection in writing addressed to the General Manager of KGI Securities is received from the Client to KGI Securities within 7 calendar days from the date of such contract note/statement.
- 25.2 KGI Securities will provide the Client with a statement in respect of Securities, monies and/or other assets (if any) in relation to the Account(s) each month or at such intervals as KGI Securities considers appropriate and/or as may be required by the relevant Rules. The Client hereby undertakes to check the accuracy of such statement and to ensure such statement is received by the Client at regular intervals. Unless KGI Securities receives from the Client a written objection as to the contents of any such statement within 7 calendar days from the date of such statement, the Client shall be conclusively deemed to have read and confirmed the contents of the statement.
- 25.3 KGI Securities may send contract notes/statements for Securities Transactions and statements in respect of Securities, monies and/or other assets (if any) in relation to the Account(s) to the Client by electronic means. If sent by electronic mail, such contract notes and statements shall be deemed to be duly sent to the Client if sent by KGI Securities to the latest electronic mail address notified by the Client to KGI Securities in writing and KGI Securities shall have no liability whatsoever in respect of any loss or damage suffered by the Client for non-receipt at such electronic mail address for any reason whatsoever.
- 25.4 Notwithstanding the foregoing, KGI Securities shall be entitled (but not obliged) at any time to rectify any error on any contract note or statement.

26. Safekeeping

- 26.1 KGI Securities shall hold, return or otherwise deal with the Securities so deposited for safe keeping on written or verbal instructions given by the Client and KGI Securities shall not be held liable for any act or omission to act on instructions given or purported to be given should there be any error or ambiguity in such instructions. All instructions so given to KGI Securities shall remain in force until revoked and/or cancelled in writing to and received by KGI Securities from the Client.

Guide and Cautionary Notes in Applying For/Continuing an Account with KGI Securities (Singapore) Pte. Ltd. (hereafter either “We” or “Us” – "Guide")

We provide this Guide and Cautionary Notes in the interest of transparency and fair dealing with you.

It is designed to assist you in:

- (i) understanding the types of services we offer, and their respective limits; and
- (ii) with that understanding, deciding on whether to use, and if so, which of our service or services to use.

While there are common terms governing all of our services – as you will note from a study of our Terms & Conditions for Securities Trading, the terms specific to each service will vary.

Who Are We And What Services Can We Provide?

We are the holder of a capital markets services license (“CMS license”) under the Securities and Futures Act, Chapter 289 of Singapore (the “SFA”) for the carrying out of the following activities regulated under the SFA:

Dealing in Securities
Trading in Futures Contracts
Securities Financing
Providing Custodial Services for Securities

Because we hold a CMS license for the regulated activities set out above, we are also entitled to be, and are, registered as an exempt financial adviser (“EFA”) under the Financial Advisers Act, Chapter 110 of Singapore (the “FAA”) for the carrying out of financial advisory services as defined under the FAA and/or its regulations.

What Services Are Available To You From Us?

We provide basically three levels of service:

- (i) execution only;
- (ii) dealing with execution-related advice (“ERA”); and
- (iii) dealing with advice under a formal advisory agreement (“Paid Advice”).

ERA is specifically defined by our regulators as advice or recommendation that we provide for no additional payment, apart from any fee that we may earn from your actually dealing (i.e. buying/selling) in investment products with or through us. We refer to such advice or recommendation as free advice or recommendation.

Excluded Investment Products

Level of Services

For dealings in what are called Excluded Investment Products (“EIPs”), all three levels of services are (depending on your circumstances and the circumstances of you in particular when transacting in EIPs) available but you need to know and accept that any advice or recommendations from us come with limits and conditions.

Fundamentally we provide our customers with execution only broker services. This means that you (and not us or any of our representatives) are responsible to determine the suitability of any and every transaction you do and every order/instruction that you give to us.

The only possible exception to the preceding is when your transaction or order is in reliance on Paid Advice, and even then, if you did not provide us with the information we require for a proper suitable product or investment or securities transaction assessment specifically for you analysis, no advice or recommendation you may receive from us or our representatives takes into account your particular investment objectives, financial situation or particular needs.

Present regulations allow us and our representatives to provide ERA with respect to listed as well as approved in principle to be listed EIPs BUT, as with generally circulating advice and recommendations, still leaving only you with the ultimate risk and responsibility to determine the actual suitability for you of any and every such recommendation and suggestion.

You are therefore and hereby notified that:

- (i) any and every ERA that you may receive with respect to any listed EIP does not take into account your investment objectives, financial situation or particular needs; and
- (ii) it is solely your responsibility to ensure the suitability of the product recommended for you to buy or sell (as the case may be).

For avoidance of doubt therefore, you are specifically warned that any and all advice or recommendation (which you believe or assert to be either from us or our representatives authorised to give such advice or recommendation) which are not either Paid Advice, or ERA with respect to listed EIPs can be accepted as being from us or given with our authority only if you accept them as no more than generally circulating advice and therefore subject to the following conditions:

- (i) Being intended for general circulation rather than reliance by any specific person (including yourself), all such recommendations and suggestions do not take into account your specific investment objectives, financial situation or particular needs;
- (ii) That you will, if you yourself have any doubt, seek advice from a financial adviser regarding the specific suitability of the recommendation or suggestion you have any doubt for you to follow; and
- (iii) We being entitled to assume that where you choose to follow any such recommendation or suggestion, you do so only after you are personally satisfied that it is specifically suitable for you to follow and you accept sole responsibility for the suitability of the order given or transaction made in following the recommendation or suggestion.

What are EIPs?

EIPs are limited to securities (and options on such securities) that are listed for trading on an approved securities exchange in Singapore and not specifically specified by such securities exchange to be a Specified Investment Product. Please refer to the Appendix attached for a list of EIPs.

EIPs¹ are less complex products which are already established in the market and are generally well understood by retail investors. As such we will provide you our services on a purely execution only dealing services in relation to EIPs.

For our services in relation to EIPs, except for Paid Advice, we therefore assume and materially rely on you being agreeable and willing to generally accept sole responsibility for determining the merits or suitability of any and all transactions that you may enter into with respect to any and all EIPs. If you are not agreeable and willing, you should and must not apply for an account for dealing in EIPs with us. If you have such an account you must take steps to close that account. The only exception to our execution only services for EIP is dealing with Paid Advice. For this you must have entered into a formal advisory agreement with us defining both the circumstances when we will provide or be deemed to be providing you advice or recommendations in relation to EIPs; and our charges for the giving of such advice or recommendation(s).

Specified Investment Products

Level of Services

For dealings in what are called Specified Investment Products ("SIPs"), all three levels of services are (depending on your circumstances and the circumstances of you in particular when transacting in SIPs) available but only if you are not any of the following:

- I. an accredited or expert investor as defined below; or
- II. resident outside of Singapore and not a Singapore citizen or a permanent resident of Singapore or wholly or partly dependent on a Singapore citizen or a permanent resident of Singapore.

If you fall within I and/or II then, our services are (as with EIPs generally) limited to execution only services and/or dealing with Paid Advice only.

If you do not fall within either I or II and you are a natural person, then you will be regarded as a Retail Singapore Client. Please see below under the heading of "Retail Singapore Client" for the services that we will offer you.

What are SIPs?

SIPs are (for the purposes of our dealing services available to you as a CMS license holder) capital markets products that are not EIPs. SIPs are then further divided into three general types –

- (a) those listed solely on a securities or futures exchange outside of Singapore;
- (b) those listed on a securities or futures exchange in Singapore; and
- (c) those that are not listed on any securities or futures exchange.

A general guide on SIPs is available through the following link:

Exemption Notice for Accredited, Expert and Non-Resident Investors:

Please be reminded as noted above that we are expressly exempted from assuming and will not assume (short of an express and formal agreement otherwise) any suitability obligation under the FAA or any obligation to provide product information under the FAA to any person who is either an accredited investor or an expert investor for the purposes of the FAA or who is not a Singapore Citizen or Singapore Permanent Resident, and not wholly or partly dependent upon a Singapore Citizen or Singapore Permanent Resident.

In particular, we will be exempt from:

- A. Section 25 of the FAA (relating to the disclosure of material information on designated investment products, namely collective investment schemes and life insurance policies other than reinsurance contracts) when providing any financial advisory service in respect of designated investment products to accredited investors or overseas investors, and in respect of designated investment products that are capital markets products to expert investors;
- B. Section 27 of the FAA (which requires that there must be a reasonable basis for making recommendations on investment products) when making recommendations in respect of investment products to accredited investors or overseas investors, and in respect of capital markets products to expert investors; and
- C. Section 36 of the FAA (which requires the disclosure of interests when making recommendations on securities in a circular or other similar written communication) when sending a circular or other similar written communication in which a recommendation is made in respect of securities to accredited investors, overseas investors or expert investors.

Retail Singapore Clients

Depending on whether a Retail Singapore Client wishes to deal in listed or unlisted SIPs, he will first need to pass respectively a Client Account Review (“CAR”) and/or a Customer Knowledge Assessment (“CKA”) before he may be permitted to begin or continue trading in the relevant SIP.

Therefore, unless we have expressly agreed otherwise in your case, you must have had passed either the CAR and/or CKA with us before you can begin or continue trading in the relevant SIP. In such a case you would also have been provided with a Client Investment Profile Questionnaire (the “CIP Questionnaire”) together with our request that you properly complete that CIP Questionnaire and return the properly completed CIP Questionnaire to us.

CIP QUESTIONNAIRE RESPONSE

As you had passed the CAR and/or CKA as applicable, you are actually regarded as competent to understand the nature and risks of the SIP products you will be dealing or continue to deal in. As such, you are also assumed by us to be able to make your own decisions and judgements as to the merits or suitability for you to do any trade or investment in such SIP products. You therefore need not but may (and we do suggest you seriously consider) properly complete and return to us the CIP Questionnaire.

Where you do not complete and/or return the CIP Questionnaire to us, as notified in the CIP Questionnaire provided to you, you must note, agree and accept as conditions to your being allowed to trade or continue to trade in the relevant SIPs that:

- A. we are in no position to ensure that any free advice or recommendation that may be provided to you by us are specifically suitable for you bearing in mind your specific financial position, attitude and capacity to take financial risks and financial objective trading in the SIPs that you will be trading in; and therefore
- B. any and all free advice or recommendation you receive from us will not be based on, nor take into consideration, your specific investment objectives, financial situation or particular needs; and
- C. you must assess for yourself whether any of our free advice or recommendation as may be provided to you is specifically of merit and appropriate or suitable to your individual investment objectives, financial situation or particular needs. In particular, the mere fact that our advice or recommendation is to buy or sell or hold any SIP does not necessarily mean, and must not be taken to mean, that the recommendation is suitable for you and you should therefore either make your own assessment (if you are able) or (if you cannot properly or reasonably make your own assessment) consult with your own financial adviser before acting on any such free advice or recommendation. You should do this before you make any decision on the basis of any free advice or recommendation we may provide to you.

Where you properly complete and return the CIP Questionnaire to us, then:

1. we will ensure that such free advice or recommendation that may be provided to you by us from time to time will be reasonably consistent with the information you provide in the CIP Questionnaire with regards to your suitability; but it remains your choice to choose whether you wish to follow such advice or recommendation or not. Where you choose not to follow the advice or recommendation we will assume that you have made your own informed determination not to follow the advice or recommendation and instead are accepting sole responsibility for determining the merits or suitability of any and all transactions that you may enter into contrary to the advice or recommendation given to you; and as noted in the CIP Questionnaire, the answers provided will also be the basis upon which any Paid Advice you may have engaged us to provide will proceed to be provided to you if such Paid Advice is required urgently. If Paid Advice is not urgently required, we will first confirm the continued validity of the answers provided before giving Paid Advice. Paid Advice will however be given only if you actually enter into and it will be subject to the terms of the advisory agreement you formally conclude with us.

Generally Circulating Materials and Resources Warning

Please also note that regardless of whether or not you properly complete and return the CIP Questionnaire to us, you may be provided or given access to resources or materials that are intended to be for general circulation. The materials intended for general circulation will have an express notice accompanying the materials to that effect. Such resources and materials are provided with the sole aim of enabling you to manage and control your own investments and this means also that you need to be able and willing to accept sole responsibility for ensuring the merits and suitability of any and all investments that you may make with or through us before making any investment or effecting any transaction with or through us. None of the advice or recommendation appearing in such generally-circulated materials and resources should be taken by you as intended for you to specifically rely on. They are provided expressly subject to the exemption notice and disclaimer against such effect accompanying the materials.
